These observations on the three test wells drilled by the city on the Mack Forrester land west of Canyon were furnished by Bill McMorris, consulting engineer for the city. When each test was started, the well was pumped at 1500 revolutions per minute. After a number of hours, the diesel engines were turned down to 1200 revolutions per minute in order to observe the pumping level when the wells were producing in the vicinity of 600 gallons per minute, the output the city would require from the wells if they were added to the city system.

WRECKS KILL TWO THURSDAY

Mattie C. Foster

Mattie Camelia Foster died of injuries suffered in a two-car collision six miles north of Canyon Thursday morning. Funeral services for Miss Foster were held Saturday morning.

The Rev. Doyle Ragle, pastor of the First Methodist Church in Canyon, and Dr. Eugene Slater, pastor of Polk Street Methodist Church in Amarillo, officiated at the services, conducted in Warren-LaGrone Funeral Chapel.

Pallbearers were Manus Foster, Lt. Bobby Foster, Thomas Foster, Lawrence Keaton, Joe Bryan and Don Wright. Burial was in Dreamland Cemetery.

The collision occurred at the intersection of US Highway 60-87 and FM 2219. Miss Foster was traveling east on FM 2219 and her car collided with one traveling south of Highway 60-87.

In the second car were Jack Slatten, 27, and Ernest Roberts, 29, both of Amarillo. They were injured slightly, but were released from Nebbett Hospital after treatment. Miss Foster's car was demolished in the crash which occurred about 6:45 a. m.

An employee of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, Miss Foster was on her way to work when the wreck occurred. She had been chief operator for the telephone company in Canyon since 1919, and had held the position until Canyon's system was changed over to dial operation and Miss Foster had been transferred to Amarillo.

Miss Foster had lived in Canyon since 1906. She was a member of the Pioneer Study Club and the First Methodist Church.

Survivors include her sister, Mrs. E. L. Prichard of Amarillo, and two brothers, Dewey Foster, Canyon, and Mark Foster, Bellflower, Calif.

Get Law Digest From Chief Pray

A number of copies of "A Digest of Texas Motor Vehicle Laws" has been made available to Chief of Police Ralph Pray.

The digest, published by the department of public safety, can be obtained from Chief Pray for the asking. The supply is limited, however.

The pamphlet summarizes the traffic laws of the state, including all laws which affect drivers and owners of vehicles.

County Votes To Install Sprinkling System in Dreamland Cemetery

The Randall County Commissioners Court voted Monday to provide a watering system for Dreamland Cemetery and pay the salary of the caretaker for six months to help the Dreamland Cemetery Association in its efforts to put the cemetery under permanent care.

The association began a drive about a month ago to raise funds to improve the cemetery and establish a permanent care fund. In the drive, the association plans to get $50 donations from the owners of grave spaces or the survivors of those buried there. In addition, all future sales of grave spaces will be at $50 per space.

Of the money raised through the campaign and through the sales of spaces, sixty per cent will be put into a permanent care trust fund and forty per cent will be used for current upkeep and operating expenses.

The cemetery is owned by Randall County and is now operated from the county's general fund through a special fund known as the cemetery fund. The county appropriates $3000 annually for the fund, and money from the sale of spaces goes into the fund also.

The plan held by the cemetery association is to take over the operation of the cemetery when enough money is raised to assure that a permanent care fund can be established.

One of the stumbling blocks in the way of beautifying Dreamland Cemetery has been the lack of a watering system.

The system proposed for the cemetery and to be installed by the county includes three small wells, a pressure system and portable aluminum sprinkling pipe.

For the present, all money being collected by the cemetery association from owners and survivors is being put into an escrow fund. When enough money is collected to assure the success of the movement, it will be transferred to the permanent care fund and operating fund.

"If" Is the Big Word - - -

If the legislature had passed one of the bills suggested by the Texas Press Association for the last session, the stink arising from Texas Tech would not smell nearly so bad.

The bill in question is the one which would have prohibited secret meetings of governing bodies in the state. No matter what they are called—closed, executive or star chamber—meetings which exclude the public or the press, the representative of the public, are an abomination which should be eliminated.

Many persons who serve on boards, commissions, councils and what have you feel that their actions are no business of the taxpayer. We have it here in Canyon to a lesser degree, usually on fairly unimportant things.

But in Canyon, most everyone seems to feel that it's quite all right for the school board, the city commission or the county commissioners to do their work privately if they want to. When a board in another place meets secretly, that's a different story.

If the legislature had passed the anti-secrecy bill, those professors at Tech might have been fired, but they would have been fired in the full sight of the public. Then we might have griped about them being fired because of the reasons used, but we would have known the reasons.

Presumably, a board of directors of a state college can set up its own standards of acceptability, and can hire and fire on those standards. And the standards can be changed, again by the same board of directors.

But we feel the Tech board, and any other board of any other tax-supported institution in the state, has no right to operate in secret. The Tech board is spending tax money, and it should be held in strict accountability for how it is spent. And that includes the adding to or cutting from the faculty.

We have no quarrel with the action of the Tech board, because we feel the board has the right to hire or fire. But we do have a quarrel with the way the board acted. We do not believe any group of men spending tax money has the right to hold back from the taxpayers any information, including the information about the reasons they took a specific action.

If the legislature had acted on the bill, the Tech mess wouldn't have happened.

to go over the proposed budget. He takes the time to observe the legislature and appear before committees considering bills he is interested in.

Although we can't be sure of it, we feel that Mr. Haley takes the time to write Congressmen and legislators telling them his views on various subjects. He is what is known as a "good citizen," because he takes an active interest in what government is doing.

And therein lies the lesson that we all could learn. If a citizen does not like what his government is doing, he can submit passively or do something about it. If he submits, he has no gripe coming and whatever happens is just too bad. But he can do something about it. He can let government officials know how he feels. He can write letters and make personal visits. And he can do even more. He can find candidates who believe as he does and work for their election.

A citizen can register his own vote for the candidates whom he supports. And if he worked hard, he can count on registering other votes as well.

Too many of us don't take the time to inform ourselves about candidates and when it comes time to vote we don't know which ones to scratch. So we vote for the one we think is going to win so we won't "lose our vote." And oftentimes, we do lose our vote, because the candidate we helped elect is opposed to the views of government that we hold.

Like him or not, we can learn a lesson from J. Evetts Haley. All it takes is a little time, some study and a bit of work.

But we won't learn. We'll stay home on election day, and by the way, there's an election scheduled in November for amendments to the state constitution. We'll bet the turnout at the polls will be less than 1,000 in all of Randall County.

BOYCE HOUSE

Senator Ralph Yarborough had already had a picturesque career by the time he made his first race for State office (Attorney General in 1938 when your columnist traveled with him as publicity director).

Young Ralph made his first dollar by turning, by hand, the big press on which the Chandler newspaper was printed and ran all the way home to show his parents the silver dollar with which Editor R. T. Craig had rewarded him. He was so eager to visit Europe that he worked his way across the ocean on a cattle-boat. While attending the University of Texas, he waited on tables in a student boarding house and, in summers, worked as a tank-builder in the booming Borger oil field where one night as he was walking to the camp, he was pursued by a group of drunks in a car. He ran and dodged but it was unfenced prairie and the driver would swerve, too. At last, when he was about exhausted, young Yarborough came to a ditch, crouched, ran low and then concealed himself in the shadow. The drunks gave up the chase and soon their laughter died in the distance.

When he was a young lawyer in El Paso and an important case came up for trial, the firm member in charge had a heart attack in the courtroom. Yarborough was the only other attorney familiar with the case, so it was turned over to him.

The judge granted a continuance until next day. While Yarborough was studying decisions that night in the office, a fire broke out across the alley. He kept on studying although members of the firm came into the room to carry

TO: RICHARD CAIN, Defendant,
Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to appear before the Honorable 47th District Court of Randall County at the Court House thereof, in Canyon, Texas, at or before 10 o'clock A.M. of the first Monday next after the expiration of forty-two days from the date of the issuance of this citation, same being the 19th day of August A. D. 1957, then and there to answer Plaintiff's Amended Petition filed in said Court, on the 5th day of July A. D. 1957, in this cause, numbered 3325 on the docket of said court and styled DOROTHY DAY, joined by her husband, E. A. Day, Plaintiff, vs. RICHARD CAIN Defendant.

A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows, to wit:

A suit in trespass to try title wherein plaintiff asks for judgment for title and possession of the following land and premises situated in Randall County, Texas, to-wit: Lot Number Nine (9) in Block Number Four (4) of the Caprock Addition to the City of Amarillo in Randall County, Texas; as is more fully shown by Plaintiff's Petition on file in this suit.

The officer executing this process shall promptly execute the same according to law, and make due return as the law directs.

Issued and given under my hand and the Seal of said Court, at office in Canyon, Texas, this 5th day of July A. D. 1957.

out the library and furniture. The youthful attorney won the case.

As assistant Attorney General, he was assigned to represent Texas in a controversy with New Mexico as to the division of the waters of the Rio Grande and, in his desire to learn all he could, he determined to go to the headwaters of the river, which he did, going the last mile on foot through a country too rugged for an automobile.

He was appointed district judge in Austin by Governor Allred. An attorney, who was a long-time resident of that city, immediately announced he would oppose the "young interloper" in the next election. This challenge crystallized Yarborough's determination to run for office.

He was said to have been the first candidate to campaign in every business house in the downtown business district in Austin since its small town days.

There was one merchant who had been outspoken against him. Being doubtful (or perhaps not even doubtful) of the reception he would receive, Yarborough entered this store at the back door, went through handing out his cards and, as he reached the front door where the owner was standing to greet customers, the judge handed the startled man a card, shook his limp hand briskly and departed.

He climbed a telephone pole in that campaign, it was said. A worker repairing a line called to the candidate, "If you'll come up here and give me a card, I'll vote for you." Yarborough immediately looked in the man's service car, found another pair of "climbers" and was about to put them on when the worker said, "Just leave your card on the car seat—I'll vote for you."

How did the election come out?

Yarborough won, about 2 to 1.

What Our Neighbors Say...

Scissor Snippings

W. H. Graham in the State Line Tribune (Farwell): "If Johnson and Johnson have made a fortune with their Band Aids, they can lay part of the credit on the Graham's doorstep. Our family is almost Band Aid crazy, and the wife would no more fail to buy a good supply each time she shops than she'd think of overlooking the boys' catsup, which is a staple item for each meal, regardless of the time of day or the food being served.

"A day wouldn't be complete without at least one Band Aid applied to some toe or finger of each member of the family. It's a sacrifice to get a scratch and forget the Band Aid ceremony.

"Usually this takes place under very serious conditions, and appropriate silence is maintained while the acting doctor applies the bandage to the most recent wound. As soon as the magic word, 'There,' is pronounced by the physician, the patient is expected to leap back into whatever activity had been interrupted."

Jimmie Gillentine in the Hereford Brand: "I was just thinking that I must have a lot in common with Evetts Haley. Every time I get into anything, no matter how smooth the sailing may seem to be, I always wind up in a bunch of unforeseen trouble. This seems pretty well the case with Evetts, who took over a membership on the board of trustees at Texas Tech and is currently the center of one of Texas' most publicized political hassles. Naturally, I don't know who is right or who is wrong in this wrangle, but one thing is for sure, it isn't helping Texas Tech one single bit. One other thing, it is not the first time Mr. Haley has been involved in a squabble of this type—and I doubt if it will be the last."

Mrs. L. A. Duwell in the La-Grange Journal: "Have you heard about the mentally disturbed dog who refused to go to a psychiatrist? He knew he wasn't allowed on the couch."

Ben Ezell in the Canadian Record: "Apparently the Canadian Boy Scout delegation was not among the 500 Texas Scouts who arrived unexpectedly in New York City last week and found no place to sleep. The Eastern newspapers reported the incident, adding that the Navy declined to handle the crowd aboard the USS Texas which was anchored in the harbor.

"This came as a slight surprise to us... not at the Navy's inhospitality, but at the report that the 'Texas' was in New York harbor. We were under the impression that the USS Texas is now safely anchored in concrete in a bayou within the shadow of the San Jacinto monument near Houston.

"Is it possible that the New York newspapers were pulling some legs... or maybe the Navy has commissioned a new 'Texas' to replace the old battlewagon which is now a state monument? Somebody tell us... we're somewhat at sea even if the 'Texas' isn't."

500 Panhandle Teachers Expected Here for Fifth Annual Conference

A three-day session examining problems of reading is expected to bring more than 500 Panhandle and West Texas teachers and school administrators to the West Texas State College campus July 30-Aug. 1.

The fifth annual Reading Conference at WT, sponsored by the Texas Association for the Improvement of Reading, is also bringing to the campus three nationally known authorities in reading as speakers and consultants.

These are Dr. Anna D. Cordts of Rutgers University, known for her research in phonics; Dr. Agnella Gunn, professor of education at Boston University; and Bill Martin Jr., author of children's books, storyteller and lecturer. The three will speak daily and conduct discussion periods and workshops.

Daily sessions will open with registration preceding a general assembly at 8:45 a. m. in the Administration Building auditorium. Following morning addresses, dismentary and high schools in Miami, and was a junior college teacher in Borger.

Mrs. Terry holds the B.S. degree in physical education and the M.E. degree from West Texas State College.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry have three children, Judy, 15, Twink, 13, and Dickie, 5.

cussion groups, divided by grades, will be led by the speakers. Afternoon meetings will be closed by workshops, demonstrations of materials and uses of audio-visual aids.

Entertainment for conference members include the all-college watermelon party, a comedy presented by WT's summer theatre players, and a picnic to Palo Duro State Park.

Martin, author of the best-selling children's book, "The Little Squeaky Bug," was one of the conference's speakers last summer. A graduate of Kansas State Teachers College, he taught dramatics and journalism in Kansas schools. He has done graduate work at Cornell University and is working toward his doctorate now at Northwestern University.

A graduate of Iowa State Teachers College and the University of Iowa, where she began research in phonics, Dr. Cordts has worked with pupils of all learning levels. Her college teaching has been at Iowa State Teachers College, New York University and Rutgers.

Dr. Cordts has also served as critic teacher and supervisor of reading in schools in New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. She is the author of a number of textbooks and magazine articles on the teaching of reading.

Dr. Gunn has taught in public schools, the Teachers College of Connecticut and Boston University. She has been a visiting professor at the University of Iowa, Rutgers and the University of Oregon.

During World War II, Dr. Gunn served with the Treasury Department on the Book and Author War Bond Committee. She was an educational consultant on a mission to Korea, and last year she toured the Middle and Far East for the Department of State.

Dr. Gunn is co-author of a language series and a reading series used in elementary schools. She has also contributed to a number of educational journals.

VIRTUE'S REWARD

"You did me a favor ten years ago," said the old tramp, "and I never forgot it."

"Oh," replied the good man, very pleased with himself, "and you have come back after all these years to repay me?"

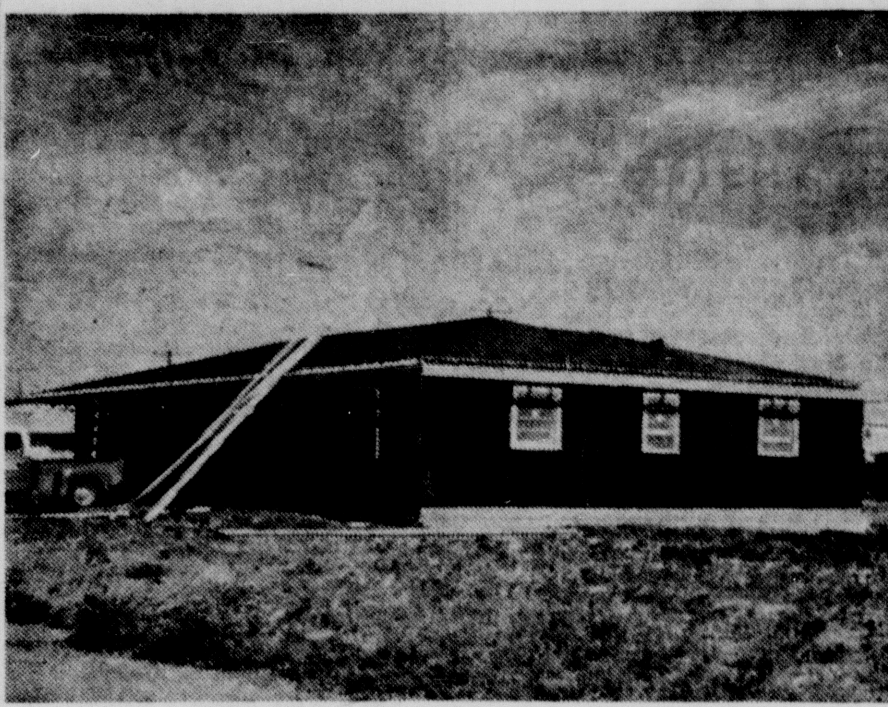

"Well, no," said the tramp. "I just got into town and need another favor. So I thought of you right away."

NOT GUILTY

Policemen (indicating unshoveled snow on sidewalk): "I suppose you know, ma'am, that you're responsible for all this snow being here."

Lady Householder: "What? The idea! Perfectly preposterous! I was fast asleep when it happened!"

West Texas Music Camp in 5th Year Opens Aug. 5 With Famed Teachers

Nationally famed authorities in band and choral direction and twirling will instruct for the fifth annual West Texas Music Camp, slated to open Aug. 5 on the West Texas State College campus.

The two weeks camp, which offers intensive training and practice, along with concert and public appearances, is expected to attract more than 300 junior and senior high school musicians from the Tri-State area.

M. J. Newman, West Texas State music department head and camp director, has announced that enrollment, auditions and dormitory assignments will be held on the afternoon of Aug. 4. Instruction, rehearsals and practice sessions get underway Aug. 5.

Newman said that the camp, which has expanded each year with additional dormitory facilities at WT, can still accommodate a number of both boys and girls. Cost for tuition, room and board for the two weeks session is $52.50. Reservations can still be sent to Newman at West Texas State in Canyon.

Choral work will be taught by L. N. "Cy" Perkins, professor of music and choral director at Oklahoma A & M. He will be assisted by Dr. Houston Bright, director of WT's A Cappella Choir. The camp choir each year includes more than 100 voices.

Four bands of about 100 players each will be formed. These are the Symphonic Band, composed of the best camp musicians and a few college instrumentalists; the Concert Band, composed of high school age musicians not yet qualified for the top band; the Junior High Band, composed entirely of students below 10th grade level; and the Reading Band, a volunteer organization of high school and college players.

All but the Reading Band perform publicly in two or three concerts. The Reading Band spends time reading and demonstrating new music materials.

Harold Bachman, director of bands at the University of Florida, will conduct the Symphonic Band. Jack Lee, director of bands at the University of Arizona, returns to the camp after serving on its staff during the first two years. Lee became famous as director of the great Michigan Marching Band before going to Arizona.

Dr. Joe Haddon of Midland High School, and formerly assistant director at Texas Tech, will conduct the junior high school group.

Sonie Rogers of Western Michigan College, former "Miss Major-ette of America" and holder of several national twirling championships, will return to the camp for the second year to teach twirling classes. She will be assisted by Ann Dorris of Dumas High School, formerly chief majorette of the West Texas State Buffalo Band.

Besides band and choral sessions, students may enroll for classes in fundamentals of drill, student conducting, theory and music for fun, as well as private lessons in all wind instruments, piano, voice and twirling.

Directors and music teachers may earn college graduate credit during the camp, by enrolling in one of three courses in choral literature and techniques, band pageantry, or the concert band. These courses are to be taught by Per-

Other work for directors include woodwind and brass workshops and a directors' seminar, taught by W. O. Latson, David Kaplan and Newman of the WT music faculty.

A full recreational program has been planned for students each day following rehearsals, sectional practices and classes. It includes swimming, picnics, games, folk and ballroom dancing, trips to Palo Duro State Park, and programs and planned activities each night.

Concerts and evening programs are planned throughout the camp, with a "grand finale concert" slated to close the camp Aug. 16.

MASKING THE TRUTH

"I've got a pretty distasteful job before me," remarked the genealogist. "Mrs. Newrich employed me to look up her family tree and I've got to inform her that one of her relatives was electrocuted."

"Why worry about that?" said his friend. "Just write that the man in question occupied the chair of applied electricity at one of our public institutions."

NO HELP WANTED

"That's a good little boy," said the visitor, as Johnny picked up his scattered toys. "I suppose your mother has promised you something if you clean up the room."

"If I don't," he corrected her. It takes 10 inches of snow to equal an inch of rain.

It's quiet around the Statehouse now, especially compared to two months ago when Legislative issues came to a tense climax.

Groups of sauntering sightseers have replaced the bustling, businesslike crowds that choked the Capitol corridors. They carry cameras instead of brief cases.

But people who are still on the job, like Comptroller Robert S. Calvert, have plenty to ponder. Calvert gave money-worriers a jolt by announcing the state is going to have to ante up $6,000,000 more for the teacher retirement system in the coming two years. Increase is due to the teacher pay raise which ups the amount both the state and the teachers must pay in.

Since the Legislature spent to within $80,000 of the state's expected revenue for the next biennium, this new drain means, according to Calvert, that "the poor old revenue fund will hit the deficit column sooner than expected." "If I had to make a new estimate of expected revenue right now," he said, "I'd have to say we'd end up almost $6,000,000 in the hole." But he added that he hoped the outlook would improve before he's called for another official forecast.

Texas Insurance Commission has granted "temporary approval" to all life, health and accident policy forms filed before Aug. 22. It's a stop-gap measure to conform with a new law and yet allow Texas insurance companies to continue business.

Dress Revue Held Thursday Morning

The Randall County Dress Revue was held Thursday morning in the Farm Bureau building with 23 girls showing dresses which were judged by Mrs. Dorothea Prowell, Assistant Home Demonstration Agent of Deaf Smith County, and Mrs. Pauline Lokey, Potter County Home Demonstration Agent.

Virginia Friemel had the highest score of the revue with a total of 121 points out of a possible 125. Carolyn Campbell, a blue ribbon winner, will represent the county at the district 4-H revue Aug. 13 in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Gas Building in Amarillo.

A girl representing the county at district must be 14 years old and have had three years of 4-H Club work. Virginia is 12 years old.

The top score of 125 points is based on how the garment looks on the girls, actual construction of the garment and the girl's records. In the dress revue, records counted 25 points.

The girl's records are considered in each 4-H contest and can mean the difference between a blue ribbon and a red ribbon. According to Mrs. Mona Hildreth, HD Agent, it is important for the girls to keep up their records and even though each contest is different in that the evaluation of the records may vary, the records will be considered.

Red ribbons were awarded to Mary Hoffman, Evelyn Hoffman, Louise Hoffman, Wanda Brown, Judy Roberts, Sharon Cranmer, Linda Brown, Cynthia Brown, Beatrice Wiecek, Patricia Salmon, Candy Throckmorton and Linda Podzemny.

Katherine Winstead and Kay Boydston were awarded white ribbons.

Archeologists Find Early-Day Indian Signs

It took a month for a crew of diggers from the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum to uncover the history of the past thousand years or so in a cave in the Palo Duro Canyon.

Information gained from the excavation, finished this week, will offer new understanding of the Indian and animal life in prehistoric days and will give further evidence on climatic cycles in this area. Jack T. Hughes, curator of paleontology at the museum, said the excavation was made possible by the cooperation of the landowner in notifying the museum that the cave was to be destroyed by expansion of a nearby caliche pit.

Sponsoring the dig were the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society and the museum. Hughes directed the operation with a crew made up of volunteers and paid employees. Working with Hughes were Bill Harrison, Canyon, Ernestine Green and Jeanine Berry, Amarillo, Gary Tunnell, Turkey, Larry Meek, Palm Springs, Calif., Bill Childers, Canyon, Dwight Huber, Amarillo, and Don Kriebel, Lubbock.

Since 1954, geology students at West Texas State College have assisted with occasional exploratory trenching in the cave, but it was on June 12 that Hughes set up a camp at the site and began full-scale excavation.

With the work completed, Hughes says it is possible now to see that the materials found in the cave give a complete record for the last 1,000 years or so of the various Indian groups who have inhabited the Panhandle.

"This cave is an attractive camping site with roomy, pleasant shelter and with water and firewood convenient to it," Hughes explained. "It was probably inhabited at one time or another by groups representing the several different tribes that roamed the Panhandle before the coming of the white man."

"In such a site, the material culture remains — the different kinds of materials left by each group — instead of being thinly scattered over a large area as would be done in an open camp site, are stacked up in a comparatively small area and protected from weathering rock falls and dust layers further protect anything left in the cave, even to perishable items which are almost unique in the Panhandle."

Hughes explained that there has been stratigraphy, the orderly sequence from top to bottom, in other Panhandle excavations, but the various levels in this particular cave were more productive than have been other excavations, making a wider sampling from each group possible. There also are more groups represented in this cave than in previously-excavated stratified sites in the Panhandle, Hughes said.

Materials from the cave now begin undergoing the long process of cleaning, cataloguing and study which precedes scientific publication of information gleaned in the cave—and until this study has been made Hughes stresses that anything he says about the finds has to be considered mostly a guess.

After studies are complete and reports published, representative items from the cave will be displayed at the museum in Canyon. Tentatively, however, Hughes distinguishes five periods of occupation within the cave, each clearly separated by sterile zones laid down when the cave was not occupied. He thinks farmers may be interested in the fact that between the first and second occupation periods from the top there is a thin layer of pure brown dust, and another dust layer is found between the fourth and fifth occupation levels.

The upper dust layer, he thinks, coincides with the great drought of 1450 A.D. which usually is blamed for having made the Pueblo-village-dwellers centered along the Canadian River leave the Panhandle.

"This is one more proof that drought periods are not entirely brought on by poor land usage, because we can see that equally severe or even worse droughts have occurred in ancient times when there was no extensive agriculture," Hughes said.

"Droughts have been characteristic of this region for a long, long time, but by dating these dust layers we may be able to tell when the severe droughts occurred and possibly get some idea as to how often or with what regularity they occurred."

On rocks forming the roof of the cave, which diggers call Opal Cave because veins of common opal run through the roof rock, are some Indian paintings. One is a black bull, one is a red handprint, and there is a group of stylized figures which seem to be depictions of warriors with shields, bows and arrows, and spears.

Opal making up the cave is too soft to be practical for Indian weapons, but the ancient inhabitants evidently could not resist using the pretty stone, because several tiny arrow points chipped from it were found in the deposits of the shelter floor. The cave-dwellers also were relic collectors, Hughes says, because with the recent material were found spear points which are known to have been made as much as 10,000 years

Hughes thinks Indians who lived in the cave did just what diggers in the cave did—they picked up the more ancient spear points from old camp grounds on the canyon rim near the cave. The diggers also found ancient points on these open camp sites above the cave.

Hughes said the cave was dug by making a contour map of the floor surface, then staking the area into 5-foot squares. Each square was then troweled layer by layer in a checkerboard pattern. As each square was dug, the four sides were sketched and photographed to give a clear record of exactly how the layers of material were laid down in the cave.

Materials screened from each layer of each square were kept in separate containers to aid in final analysis of the things unearthed.

"Our aim is not just to move dirt, but to salvage any irreplaceable clues to the history of this area. That is why we put each bit of dirt we take up with the trowel through quarter-inch screens—so we won't overlook any little thing," Hughes said.

"By taking such caution, we move slowly, of course, but we try to make it possible to work out details of past occupancy, and to do this, the exact position and association of each scrap of evidence is just as important as the item itself."

"You might say that we try to save, with records, what we must destroy to salvage—we must destroy the cave deposit by digging, but we try to make our records so thorough that any future scientist can know exactly what that cave was like before we dug it."

The diggers saved every bit of bone so that study can determine what type of game was hunted by Indians during each era represented in the cave. All flint chips were saved to help learn what sources the Indians used for their materials, and charcoal was kept so that exact age of occupation layers might be obtained through use of radiocarbon dating.

The topmost layer of the cave contains everything left there from the present back to about the time of Coronado's entry into the area, Hughes said. Mixed in this layer are things associated only with white men—metal objects such as hat pins, hair pins, cartridges, a leather punch; wooden objects such as arrow shafts and other fragments of wood weapons and tools; plant materials such as evidences of grass beds, and Indian-made flint arrow points, knives and hide-scrapers.

Hughes thinks the top-level Indian material may represent Apache groups who were in the Panhandle when Coronado arrived and who were driven out by the Comanche in 1700. The subsequent Comanche, Cheyenne and Kiowa also probably are represented.

Separating the top and second levels is the brown dust layer, and the second layer of occupation holds evidences of the Pueblo-type people who had villages on the Canadian River, showing that they probably hunted in Palo Duro Canyon.

They left in the cave fragments of their typical cord-roughened pottery cooking vessels and characteristic flint work, as well as pottery they probably obtained by trade from the pueblos of the

Throughout the cave, flint points found were small triangular types indicating use of the bow and arrow, Hughes said, with the third level down being similar but separate from the second, and the fourth and fifth levels being as yet unidentified groups. The shelter, largest known in the Panhandle, is not old enough to contain extremely ancient human remains, Hughes said, because by its nature it cannot stay too long in one place.

He explained that the cave is formed by a layer of solid chert under which is crumbly caliche. The caliche weathers out and eventually leaves the overhanging chert so extended that it collapses.

A few thousand years ago, he explained, the cave probably was quite a distance downstream from its present location, then cave-offs moved the cave upstream. A few thousand years from now, the cave will be even further upstream as inevitable stream-action causes the cave to deepen and the overhang to collapse.

In the driest part of the cave

the excavation crew unearthed a scrap of newspaper in as good condition as if it had been in a library. The scrap was the lower corner of the newspaper, so it is impossible to know the name of the paper, but mention of Sheriff J. Roll Johnson of Dallas made it possible to learn that the paper was published Dec. 3, 1900, when the sheriff investigated the murder of a Pate Bain in Dallas.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

Soil erosion is the wearing away of the earth's surface by the forces of water and wind. Soil erosion may be natural or man made.

Water erosion results from the forces of flowing water and beating raindrops. Accelerated erosion can result from exposure of the soil to runoff through burning, over-grazing, tillage, and any other means which destroy or weaken vegetation.

Wind erosion results from the forces of wind moving across soil where vegetation has been over-grazed or clean tilled. Wind erosion is more common on level soils and water erosion on sloping soils.

Soil erosion caused by both wind and water can be controlled by soil and water conservation practices such as contour farming, diversions, terraces, growing of high residue crops, stubble mulching and crop residue utilization.

For further information or assistance with any of these practices contact the technicians of the Randall-Potter Soil Conservation District.

The President of the United States has proclaimed this week, July 21-27, as National Farm Safety Week. Two-thirds of the accidents on the farm are caused by machinery, drownings, firearms and falls. Let's all begin this week to be safety conscious each day throughout the year.

Now is an opportune time to take care of next year's dust storms by stubble mulching the largest amount of crop residues that this country has had in several years.

There are many ways to handle the stubble. Some use sweep type equipment that leaves stubble on surface. Some prefer chisel type equipment and this will also leave stubble on top and shatter hard pan if plowed deep when it is dry. Some farmers are using rotary shredders and following them with tandem disc which does a very good job of mulching.

Mulching helps prevent wind and water erosion, helps to increase the rate of rainfall penetration, will catch and hold snow, will reduce evaporation and will also help to maintain more even soil temperatures.

Mulching will also increase the water holding capacity of the soil. By stubble mulching your land you can hold more moisture and keep erosion to a minimum.

The Soil Conservation Service recommends stubble mulching to conserve the soil. If you should need some help with your farming problems the S.C.S. technicians will be glad to assist you. They have a farm planner, a soils man, and an engineer to help with nearly any phase of work.

Did you know we have a President's Council on Youth Fitness? Many folks are asking why American youngsters "have less muscular coordination than young Europeans"; why they are "less skilled than the youth of 15 years ago."

Last month we had our first chance to compare European and American ways of doing. In Switzerland, France, Italy and England we marvelled at the wholesome outlook and happy self-reliance of the young people. On trains and along highways they appeared by hundreds in hiking togs with knapsacks on their shoulders. They rode bicycles along country roads or threaded heavy city traffic where they balanced bread, lumber, or parcels on their two-wheeled vehicles.

On a holiday trip through the French countryside, we saw frequent family outings with Papa and the two young ones precariously balanced the one behind the other on a motorcycle. No one shouted warnings at the youngsters or held them. They had learned muscular coordination at the age of two.

Many European youngsters learn the highly precise skills and crafts for which their countries are famous. We shall never forget a sight in Venice: a skinny 12-year-old eagerly straining at the oar while his father sat quietly in the gondola and observed. European kids develop skills and muscles through necessity, and because they are taught pride in excelling — by example. These qualities do not come from driving push-button automobiles; from having Mother Hen hover and cluck until a child is 15; from never needing to earn a penny or getting to see an adult do a first-rate job with honest joy.

As long as we American parents set of standard of machine worship and easy living, we can hardly expect our kids to excel in physical fitness and the skills.

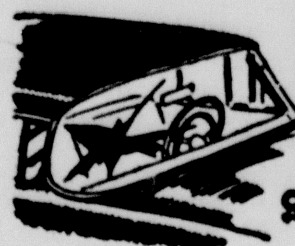

The width of United States ships is determined by the Panama Canal, and the height by the Brooklyn Bridge.

The only modern Short Stroke SIX!

Another reason why

Ford Trucks Cost Less

Under the broad hood of that boldly modern '57 Ford there's something you won't find in any other pickup. It's a six-cylinder engine with modern Short Stroke design.

Because of Short Stroke design, Ford engines—both Six and V-8—have less internal friction. This means less wear, less repair. Coupled with new 8.3 to 1 compression ratio—it also means more miles from every gallon of gas.

Ford trucks cost less in every way! First cost is low; many, many models are priced below every other make. Ford resale value is traditionally high. And independent insurance experts have certified for the 12th straight year that Ford trucks last longer. Act now—save now and for years to come!

Two History Instructors Appointed For Next Year at West Texas State

Two new instructors in history have been appointed for the 1957-58 session at West Texas State College, according to President James P. Cornette.

They are Robert F. Hefflin, who has completed course requirements for the Ph.D. degree at Vanderbilt University, and Mary Elizabeth Davidson, who also lacks only her dissertation for the Ph.D. at the University of Pennsylvania.

Hefflin, who has been a teaching fellow at Vanderbilt while working toward his doctorate, is completing research for his doctoral dissertation. His subject is "Military Operations from Shiloh to Vicksburg." A graduate of Franklin College with majors in history and journalism, Hefflin earned his master's degree in history at Vanderbilt in 1956. He also attended George Peabody College for Teachers.

Hefflin worked for the United States Civil Service Commission for two years before resigning to continue his graduate work.

Miss Davidson returned to her home in Tuscaloosa, Ala., in June after a year in England, where she was conducting research on 'Lord Granville for her dissertation. She was abroad on a grant from the Southern Scholarship foundation.

Miss Davidson earned her A.B. and M.A. degrees in history at the University of Alabama, and after a summer's study at Northwestern University, she entered the University of Pennsylvania to study toward her doctorate.

She taught four years in Alabama high schools before going to the University of Alabama as a graduate assistant and instructor. She was a graduate assistant and instructor at Pennsylvania and Drexel Institute of Technology.

Vows Solemnized

MRS. BURWELL WILLIS SOUTHERN

Single-Ring Ceremony Is Read Saturday Evening in Church Chapel

In a single-ring ceremony in the chapel of the Polk Street Methodist Church, Amarillo, Saturday evening, Jo Nell Myers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burr Albert Myers, Amarillo, became the bride of Dr. Burwell Willis Southern, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Leo Southern, Amarillo. Dr. Eugene Slater, pastor, read the ceremony.

Wedding baskets of white gladioli and white carnations decorated the altar, which was centered with a white velvet kneeling bench and flanked by candelabra holding white tapers. Emerald palms completed the setting, and family pews were marked with white carnations and white satin ribbons.

As a prelude, Mary Ruth McCulley, organist, played "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," by Bach, "Claire de Lune" by Debussy, "Air on G String," by Bach, "Etude in E" by Chopin, "Serenade," by Schubert and "Chorale in E Major" by Cesar Franck. The organist also accompanied Scott Smith, who sang "My Hero," "Because" by D'Hardelot and "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte. Traditional marches were used for the processional and recessional.

Mrs. Lonnie R. Sparkman attended the bride as matron-of-honor. She wore a waltz length dress of petal pink lace over taffeta styled with a scooped neckline and three-quarter length sleeves complemented by softly draped nylon chiffon. Her half-hat was also of lace, and she carried a nosegay of pink roses and frenched white carnations.

James Leo Southern Jr., of Dumas was his brother's best man. Ushers were Jeter G. Dickinson III, and Wallace Cox Jr., cousin of the bridegroom, of Haskell, Texas.

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her brother, Burton Range Myers, the bride wore a dress of imported handclipped French Chantilly lace and pleated nylon tulle over net and satin. The high neck was finished with a round collar, and tiny covered buttons extended down the back of the bodice and also fastened the long sleeves.

The bouffant skirt, fashioned with tiers of lace and pleated nylon tulle, featured a back of Chantilly lace which spread into a chapel sweep. Her fingertip veil of French illusion fell in two tiers from a tiara of Chantilly lace embroidered with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Myers, mother of the bride, wore a dress of navy blue shantung with white accessories and a white orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Southern, wore a navy embroidered, cutwork sheath dress with mauve accessories and a corsage of blush pink orchids.

The home of the bridegroom's parents was the scene for the reception following the ceremony. Laid with an embroidered nylon cloth over pink taffeta, the bride's table was centered with a silver bowl of pink and white roses flanked with silver candelabra tied with apple blossom nosegays.

Assisting in the house party were Dorothy Keech, Oma Kees, Mrs. Leo Southern Jr., Mrs. Richard Winstead, Mrs. John Rike and Mrs. Wallace Cox.

For the wedding trip to Colorado, the bride wore a yellow linen suit with grey accessories. The couple is to be at home at 4312 Gables in Amarillo after August 1.

Mrs. Southern graduated from Amarillo High School and attended West Texas State College. Dr. Southern graduated from Amarillo High School, attended Texas Technological College and graduated from Northern Illinois College of Optometry, Chicago, Ill. He served as optometrist at Fitzsimmons Army Hospital while in service and now has offices in Amarillo and Canyon.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding included Mrs. Burwell Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Cox Sr., Mrs. John S. Rike, Wallace Cox Jr., and John Samuel Rike of Haskell, Texas; Mrs. Richard Winstead, Port Arthur; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Clifton, Alameda.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Guy Southern and Mr. and Mrs. Burton Myers, Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Southern Jr., Dumas; and Dr. and Mrs. John Andrews, Plainview.

Friday evening, the parents of the bridegroom entertained with a rehearsal dinner at their home, 1620 Polk Street.

Dr. E. A. Oberst returned to his home in Bellaire, Md., after attending a West Texas State College class reunion. Enroute home he will visit an aunt in Nebraska.

Cherry Blossoms

BY DOVIE CHERRY

Let's talk about Canyon. Well, I say Canyon is a pretty good place to live, and a lot of people think so, too. It has retained that hometown, folksy quality through the natural hurry and scurry of modern progress.

There's a lot of the old and new sitting side by side in Canyon. There's the new jail house connected with the old court house. A fine job of connecting old and new, too. There's the long-rode-upon brick paving beside the shiny, black asphalt.

There are sleek, modern houses with wrought-iron furniture and there are wonderful, old gabled houses with lightning rods where the rocking chair is still the favorite piece of furniture.

There are folks who buzz like fury from one place to another with only time to nod at the passing people and there is still easy-come-easy-go sidewalk chatting and howdy-dooing around the square.

Women work in the yards in tattered pants, sleeveless shirts or halters and women work in their yards in sun bonnets and long sleeve jackets. Some grow enough garden to stock the pantry next year and some had just as soon frequent the frozen foods department at the grocery stores.

Neighbors are still concerned with what church their neighbors belong to . . . how many teeth the Nelson's little boy has . . . and all at the same time Canyon is still big enough to have folks move in and out without much notice.

There are arguments for more recreation for the young people and there are arguments that what this younger generation needs is a good smart whack in the seat of the pants and some wood to chop.

There's still a lot of hometown quality in Canyon. When the fire siren sounds, everybody and his dog still goes to see what's a'burnin'. Canyon folk favor the dignity of formal weddings, announcement teas and coffees. But when there's an uproar and a lot of honking downtown, it just might be an old-fashioned cheverie, and I hope you know what that last word is because I'll be if I know how to spell it.

More talk about Canyon. In any thinking community, there's progress brewing and there seems to be progress brewing in the form of a community center here in town.

A lot of people are firmly convinced that a community center is what this town needs. The people down in Lorenzo decided so, too, and they are going to get their community center.

Lorenzo has a population of about 1,000 and for those 1,000 people's community activities the city hopes to have by December a $35,000 building.

Just what would a community center for Canyon cost? No one knows for sure until plans have been drawn up and it has definitely been decided what will go into a center. But, after looking at the floor plan for the Lorenzo center, I would estimate that somewhere around $60,000 would take care of a community center for Canyon.

A lot of money, isn't it? But, to have a community center for Canyon that meets the needs of all the community, there must be a building equipped with club rooms, a main room suitable for large group activities, such as the youth recreation activities, and most certainly a kitchen.

Lorenzo had a bond election to get their community center. I think after mentioning the fact that about $60,000 would be needed for a center in Canyon, the average citizen can realize why Canyon should not have a bond election to acquire the center.

Canyon simply needs bond elections a heap of a lot more for other things. Besides, I believe the people should decide on the community center and those in favor raise the money for it.

One of the ways suggested to raise money for the center is by the Christmas Card Project, such as Hereford had last year. The women, at present, specifically the federated women's clubs, seem to be in favor of this type of project as a money-raising starter.

Hereford raised over $3,000 using this project. It simply involves using the money usually spent for Christmas cards sent to friends and relatives in town as a donation to the project. Cards to friends and relatives out of town are sent. But, if this project is to be used it needs to get underway as soon as possible. After talking with women from the three federated clubs in town, I find that there has been no definite move made at present.

Waiting until Christmas is upon us is too late to begin the project. It needs to be started now. People begin thinking about Christmas early and some order their Christmas cards as early as September.

For the success of the project, it needs to be a unified movement. And it takes a while to get the majority of people unified in effort and mind.

I guess there are some things a person would never know about their town if they didn't leave it for awhile every now and then.

While visiting in Lorenzo during the weekend, I learned that not too long ago we had a bride and bridegroom spend part of their honeymoon in the county jail.

It seems some practical joker gave them the wrong directions to Buffalo Lake—directions to a deadend road. The deadend road was such a surprise when they got there, that, unable to stop, they turned the car over.

They weren't injured, and the only place to go was to the county jail to wait for their folks to come get them. It was a story that, fortunately ended happily, and will give the couple something to tell the grandkids.

Kanin Comedy To Be Final Play Of BIT Season; Opens on July 30

Fay Kanin's sophisticated modern comedy, "Goodbye, My Fancy," final production of the summer theatre season by the Palo Duro Players at West Texas State College, will be presented six nights opening July 30.

The play, to be given intimate theatre, or "theatre in the round," style, will be directed by Dr. Lowell Matson of Purdue University. His production of "Green Grow the Lilacs," presented in June, enjoyed one of the best runs in WT's summer theatre history.

Curtain time each night will be at 8:15 and reservations may be obtained by mail or telephone through the WT speech department. Admission is 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for children.

Opening night July 30 will be played primarily for teachers on the campus for the fifth annual Reading Conference, and on Aug. 5 for music students attending the annual West Texas Music Camp. Other nights slated are July 31, Aug. 1-3.

"Goodbye, My Fancy," first produced in 1948, brought acclaim to Madeleine Carroll, Conrad Nagel and Sam Wanamaker, and earned great notice for Shirley Booth.

In the leading roles for the WT production are Dr. Wendell Cain, assistant professor of speech, Loretta Patillos of Amarillo, John Welton of Lefors, Henry Eason of Amarillo, and Dolly Lynch of Amarillo.

Other roles have been assigned to Brenda Solnick of Amarillo, Cherri Crouch of Vega, Georgia Ehly of Amarillo, Mary Scott of Canyon, Barbara Haar of Perryton, Lonnie Tilson of Borger, Raymond Kirkwood of Stratford, Steve Oles of Amarillo, Roberta Hickman of Canyon.

Elizabeth Jones of Amarillo, Thelda Cobb of Happy, Merle Ware of Hartley, Fawayne Murphy of Dimmitt, Evelyn Hooker of Claude, and Bill Graham of Amarillo.

The play is the story of a liberal Congresswoman who returns to her old school to be awarded an honorary degree. She proposes to show a movie of World War II, showing the horrors of war, and becomes involved in a fight to show the movie to the girls of the college.

While the comedy is spiced with ample laughs, it also is a satire on bigotry in education, in particular in girls' schools.

NEWS LETTER

FROM CONGRESSMAN WALTER ROGERS OF THE 18TH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

The Supreme Court Speaks

There is a book titled, The Supreme Court Speaks. It is a book I wish everyone could read and thoroughly digest. Many questions in the minds of our people regarding the extent of power vested in the Supreme Court would be answered.

This is especially important and timely in view of the many recent decisions of the Court which have been subjected to criticism in the press, on the floor of Congress, and on main street. The reader would fully realize the indispensable necessity of placing only well-balanced individuals on the Court, who are devotedly dedicated to the American way of life.

To stray from such policy would be to endanger sorely the very existence of our form of government. This is so because ours is a government by law, and the Supreme Court has the final and decisive say as to what is or is not the law.

I receive many letters asking why Congress does not pass laws overruling certain decisions rendered by the Supreme Court. In the first place, it is most difficult to pass such a law. We, in Texas, fully appreciate this, because that is exactly what we did in the famous Tidelands case.

Those of us who were here during that battle will never forget the uphill fight which had to be waged to accomplish it. However, in the second place, I hasten to point out that, even though Congress should pass a law invalidating a decision of the Supreme Court, the Court still has the power to invalidate the very law passed by Congress to overrule the Court decision.

In other words, the Supreme Court of the United States could declare unconstitutional the public law passed by the Congress restoring the tidelands to the State of Texas. In such event, there would be nothing the Congress could do.

A remedy could only be accomplished through the people by an amendment to the Constitution specifically spelling out and limiting the powers of the Supreme Court in that regard.

For instance, the Court decided on Thursday, July 11, that Specialist 3 c Girard, a member of the United States Armed Forces in Japan, should be turned over to the Japanese government for trial. The Court indicated this was a matter for the Executive and the Legislative Branches of the government.

However, the Court failed to point out that, regardless of what the Legislative Branch of the government did, the power remained with the Court to determine the final disposition of Girard or any other American citizen.

In view of the decision in the Girard case, as well as several others in recent months to which I referred in the early paragraphs of this letter, you may expect vigorous efforts on the part of many people and organizations in this country to take whatever steps may be necessary, including amendments to the federal Constitution, in order to spell out and limit the powers of the Supreme Court.

Civil Rights

Many Members of the Congress were deeply disturbed by the news stories which came out of the conference between President Eisenhower and Senator Dick Russell of Georgia regarding the so-called Civil Rights Bill. It had been the feeling that the President did not realize the bill could be used as a weapon with which to punish the South.

This feeling was brought about by the statement of the President in his press conference to the effect there were some things in the bill he did not clearly understand. However, it is now generally conceded everyone understands that, if this bill becomes law, it can be used as a whip or weapon to punish the Southern states.

The discussion between the President and Senator Russell did not indicate any doubt on the part of the President that the law could be used for such purposes. The conference merely brought out that the President did not intend to so use the law.

The test of a good law should not be whether or not the head of the government would use the same to abuse people, but whether or not he could so use it.

Foreign Aid

The Washington papers recently carried a story about a $30 a day consultant in the Foreign Aid Department. It seemed she had been hired to put together detailed information in the nature of propaganda to sell the foreign aid program. She made the mistake of explaining her duties to the top foreign aid boss, John B. Hollister.

Result: no more $30 a day consultant. Hollister decided such activities are an unnecessary expense on the taxpayer. Too bad he doesn't have time to find out about other activities in that Agency.

In Plain English...

Lots of people have new cars, new refrigerators, new stoves, new clothes and new houses.

These very same people have insurance geared to model-T Ford days. Insurance lacking the new, modern protection features... features this agency can provide to bring your insurance up to date.

Remember, if you're not fully insured, it's not enough!

TELEPHONE TALK

Miss Foster in Accident

We telephone people were most shocked to learn of the automobile accident that took the life of Mattie Foster last Thursday. Miss Foster was one of our best loved telephone folks. She started work in Canyon in 1915 and became chief operator in 1919. She was in charge of all the operators from that time until 1953 when dial service went in.

When such tragedies come so close to home, I know it will make each of us think a little more carefully as we take our own families on the highways this summer.

Keep in Touch

If you're like most of us, you sometimes have an uneasy feeling after out-of-town company has left, especially if they have a long drive to make on today's crowded highways.

A lot of folks do more than just worry about such a situation. They keep in touch by telephone. Those words you hear, "Yes, we got home all right," can relieve lots of anxiety.

More and more people are finding out that Long Distance is a real bargain, especially when calls are placed after six in the evening or all day Sunday. And when you call, don't forget to call by number. Your call will go through twice as fast that way.

A Bit of Color

The trend today is toward color... whether in new cars, ladies' fashions or telephones.

The selection of modern telephone sets now available is certainly keeping step with today's colorful living. We have phones that blend into an overall room scheme; others that contrast with any background; and sets that harmonize with your present color scheme.

A color set will brighten up any room in your home, and you'll be surprised to find out how reasonable they really are.

If you'd like to find out more about the eight decorator colors that are available, just call the telephone company. Or better still, drop in to see them the next time you're close by.

Call by number. It's twice as fast.
